President Seeks To Force Budget Balancing Action

Says Congress Being Misled By Lobbyists

Hoover Assails Lobbying Gangs Who Are In Washington

PRESIDENT WILL REPEAT DEMANDS

Washington Is Stirred By Messages Demanding Congress Act

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Literary warfare between President Hoover and Congress continued unabated today with Democrats answering the President's strictures by declaring that he and his cabinet are the chief obstacles to real economy.

The President's second pronouncement in two days on the necessity of a balanced budget and economy failed to allay the indignation of the Democrats, although they detected a different note in the second statement.

Lobbyists Attacked
While the President in his special message charged Congress with tactics which undermine confidence, in his newspaper statement he stressed an attack on lobbyists who, he said, misled Congress as to the real attitude of the country.

The situation, it was generally admitted, doomed the possibility of a non-partisan rule in the closing days of Congress.

Democrats in the House, who accepted Mr. Hoover's message as a direct slap at them, planned to continue their effort to present what they term the "true situation."

Urges Garner Answer
Speaker John N. Garner of the House was urged by his colleagues to take the floor today to answer the President.

Members of Congress agreed with the President's statement that organized minorities which threaten members and the "loose swarm of lobbyists" make the path of economy difficult. They pointed to the PARIS, May 7.—Paul Jougouloff, or Gorgouloff, who fired the shots which killed President Doumer, was a strange personality with a twisted outlook upon life. A misdirected idealist, he was obsessed with the conviction that destiny had called him to assassinate the president.

Born in Southern Russia in 1855, he later became a Cossack. He was six feet tall, with powerful broad shoulders, shaggy brown hair, greenish gray eyes, a square jaw, and a round, heavy-featured face.

His writings showed a "oujik," or peasant complex. He referred to himself as the "green doctor of the partisan peasant." He recently wrote the words to a Russian national anthem.

Posed As Doctor
Jougouloff had been in Paris since September, posing as a doctor and advertising in Russian newspapers as a blood specialist. In 1931 he

Gaston B. Means Spends Third Day In Capital Jail On Larceny Charge

LINDBERGH ANGLE CAREFULLY CHECKED

Plan To Arraign Former Justice Department Investigator Next Tuesday

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—His spirits high and sporting new clothes brought to him by his wife, his only visitor, Gaston B. Means, the former department of justice agent with a prison record, spent his third day in jail today while the federal authorities tried to verify his story that he had been connected with men he believed are holding the Lindbergh baby.

Tuesday he will be arraigned before the U. S. commissioner on a warrant obtained by Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wife of a local publisher, charging larceny of $100,000 after trust. Mrs. McLean charged she gave Means this sum to use with the kidnapers in return for the baby's release. He reported several "contacts" with a gang, Mrs. Means said, and when asked by a reporter if he knew where the Lindbergh baby is now, Means replied:

"Now, that's confidential."

Case Speeded Up.
Leo A. Rover, U. S. district attorney, utilized all his agencies to expedite the case. Not waiting for Tuesday's preliminary hearing, he called Mrs. McLean, her butler, who allegedly saw her give the money to Means, and the department of justice agents who investigated the case, before the federal grand jury yesterday in an effort to obtain an indictment.

The jury will decide Tuesday whether Means will be brought to trial or released.

Fire Official Inspects Houses
Says Buildings Should Be Repaired Or Else Removed

Fire Chief Stockman reported to D. O. Davies, director of public safety today that he had examined a house and barn at 105 South Walnut street. He said the house needed repair but is not a fire menace. He recommended the removal of the wooden barn.

He also recommended repairs to a house at 508 Pearson street. If it is not repaired, it should be removed as he considers it a menace at the present time. Stockman also recommended the removal of a property at 429-429½ Shady Side avenue, reporting that it is a fire menace in his opinion.

Divorcee Quizzed In Axe Murders

A pretty divorcee has been held at Memphis, Tenn., for questioning in the ax slaying of Mrs. Stanley Puryear and her eight-year-old daughter, shown above. Police say the divorcee was known to have been friendly with Puryear, who is held on a charge of killing Will Jamison, a negro who, Puryear claims, he caught wielding the ax. On his deathbed the negro denied he killed Mrs. Puryear and her daughter and claimed he was shot by a man fitting Puryear's description when called to Puryear's house.

He was unharmed, but weary from his eight-day ordeal of captivity. The youth's captors liberated him shortly before midnight in Deere Park, near Ottawa. His mother and brother, apparently following the kidnapers' instructions, were at the park to receive him and bring him home.

It was said that a ransom of $7,500 was paid, but Max Miller, the youth's father, refused to confirm this report. The kidnapers originally demanded $50,000.

ASSASSIN'S BULLETS PROVE FATAL TO HEAD OF FRENCH REPUBLIC

Entire Nation In Mourning As Result Of Death Of President Doumer

France Is Left Without President Until Assembly Names One

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 7.—France was a sorrowing nation today, with flags everywhere draped with black for President Paul Doumer, victim of the second presidential assassination in French history.

The 75-year-old statesman, after a tenacious 14-hour fight for life which was typical of his character, died at 4:37 a. m. from bullet wounds received yesterday at the hands of a Russian fanatic.

Lost Four Sons in War
President Doumer was almost universally regarded as the personification of French patriotism because of his brave attitude toward the loss of four of his sons in the World War.

The four million inhabitants of Paris and thousands elsewhere in France, who through radio and extra editions of newspapers kept close watch on the president's condition, went to bed after midnight on receiving reports from Beaujon hospital that the beloved statesman had a 60-40 chance to live.

The nation, awakened by the brilliant sunshine of a mild spring morning, was shocked to learn M. Doumer had passed away.

His last hours were peaceful, according to Professor Gosset, who revealed M. Doumer went into a coma at midnight.

Lindbergh Aide In Pittsburgh
Col. Henry Breckinridge Is Reported To Be On Mission In Pittsburgh

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, May 7.—Col. Henry S. Breckinridge, aide to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and reputed mystery passenger in a plane piloted by Maj. T. J. Lanphier that landed here late yesterday, was completely successful in his efforts to avoid publicity today.

Breckinridge stepped unobtrusively from Lanphier's plane at the county airport and immediately disappeared. Lanphier refueled and took off "for the Kentucky Derby," he said.

It was not learned what angle of the Baby Lindbergh kidnapping case had brought Breckinridge to Pittsburgh. It was recalled, however, that Police Superintendent Peter P. Wash remarked at the "Conference of the Chiefs" in Trenton that he believed he might be able to establish valuable contacts in the case.

Consistory Men Present Play

"John Brent" Is Staged At Cathedral On Friday Evening

CHARACTERS ARE WELL PORTRAYED

"John Brent" a play dealing with the activities of a spy by that name, during the Revolutionary war, was presented Friday evening, May 6, in the Cathedral Auditorium by the Consistory Players. A crowd estimated at 1600 was present.

The play stands out more for its presentation of historic narrative rather than dramatic construction. The action is all settled around the title character "John Brent" who has been recaptured after escaping following his trial as a traitor. The scenes are laid in Williamsburg, Va., at a banquet given by the Masonic lodge of that city, at which are present many Revolutionary heroes, Washington, Greene, Lafayette, Hamilton, Monroe, Randolph, all of them appear and all of the characters were taken by men of the New Castle Consistory.

SCOTLAND YARD INCREASES ROYALTY GUARD

English Police Service Will Take Warning From Doumer's Death

LONDON, May 7.—As a result of the assassination of President Doumer of France, Scotland Yard has issued inflexible instructions to strengthen the background of guards wherever and whenever members of the royal family or prominent government officials appear in public.

Scotland Yard does not expect any repetitions of the French tragedy in England, but will take no chances, it was learned.

The situation was explained to International News Service by a prominent Yard official as follows: "Unconsciously, I suppose, we have permitted ourselves to be deluded by a false feeling of security," he said, "and allowed a degree of laxity in safeguarding the lives of those susceptible to attack."

"But this senseless attack on the president of France has impressed us with the necessity of taking more precautions than ever before. This we will do."

Mrs. Clarke's wish that the body of her son be disinterred and an examination made, she said, was based on information she had received from Dr. Carleton Deeder, the physician who attended her boy from the time he was found shot at 3 a. m., April 21, in the Keith-Miller home, until he died eight hours later.

to learn of the president's progress. Premier Andre Tardieu, leaving at 1:15 a. m., foresaw the end.

"His condition is very critical," Tardieu said. "The end is nearing." Later, bulletins were issued by Prof. Gossard, noted surgeon, and five other attending physicians, confirming this and officially giving up hope.

At the president's death a previous censorship was lifted and the news flashed around the world. Mme. Doumer and Mme. Emery, wife of the president's grandson, returned to the Elysee. Mme. Doumer, who almost fainted when informed of her husband's death, was comforted by M. Tardieu.

Body Is Removed

The president's body was taken to the Elysee at 5:15 a. m., accompanied by the cabinet and garde republicaine. The tri-colored draped cortege moved slowly through streets deserted except for a few workmen.

A military guard was placed about the president's private apartments to watch over the body. Dr. Paul Jougouloff, the assassin, was taken to Sante prison last night. Jougouloff, who also spells his name Gorgouloff, was said by police to be insane. He claimed he headed a "League" organization and shot the President to provoke war against the Soviet republic.

Meanwhile France faced a political situation unprecedented in its history. Technically the country will be without a head until a national assembly is called at Versailles next week to elect a new president.

Favored to succeed M. Doumer was Albert Lebrun, president of the Senate. Lebrun and the council of ministers meanwhile are empowered to act as president.

National Funeral Thursday

The body of Paul Doumer, martyred President of France, lay in his private apartment in the Elysee Palace today as a stricken nation moved to pay him homage and find a way out of the most tangled political crisis in years.

Still staggered by the cowardly assassination of the beloved chief executive, Premier Andre Tardieu set in motion the machinery of tribute and of political reorganization.

In a communique issued from the foreign office—draped, as all other public buildings—with folds of black crepe, Premier Tardieu announced that France would announce its dead president a national funeral at 10 o'clock next Thursday morning.

At 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, the national assembly will meet to elect M. Doumer's successor.

ABNORMAL MIND OF DOUMER'S ASSASSIN REVEALED IN DIARY

had been refused permission to live in France because he had practiced medicine illegally, but despite this he remained in the country. Jougouloff's writings indicated he planned to assassinate President Doumer because he believed France would be thrown into a war with Russia. It also was shown he hated the United States, and it was the police theory that he would have gone to America, possibly with similar intentions, if he had escaped yesterday.

He lived in Prague from 1921 to 1927. Since then, he said upon questioning, he had organized a party of 30 or 40 so-called Fascist agitators in Monaco and Nice. He wrote under the pen name "Paul Brede," and carried cards which read: "Paul Brede, writer, journalist, and fighter."

Police Find Diary

Jougouloff kept a diary which police declared left no doubt he was of abnormal mind. On one page he wrote:

"I kidnapped the Lindbergh baby. I spent 60,000 francs (about $2,400) doing it. We are keeping the child as hostage. We don't want ransom. He will be raised by Russian terrorists."

In addition to writing "I killed President Doumer, 1932," Jougouloff also told of having killed two political leaders, whom he did not name. Under the reference to the killing of M. Doumer, Jougouloff wrote:

"I, Jougouloff, head of the Russian Fascist party, committed this assassination alone. I am not a Bolshevik, nor am I mad. I am not a Bolshevik."

Will Be Examined

Jougouloff was married and lived with his wife in a two room apartment in Monte Carlo. Mme. Jougouloff was arrested in Monte Carlo following the shooting yesterday.

In his diary the assassin told of differences between himself and his wife, which he said grew mainly out of disagreement over their two children.

While police in Paris, Nice and Monte Carlo strove to determine the source of Jougouloff's finances, alienists were to examine him today.

Sykes has done the murder himself. In the closing scene of the play, Washington reveals Brent in his true light, presents him with his sword, and the man is given the honors due him.

Due to capable costuming and makeup, and the ability of the players, there was a charming atmosphere of reality about the entire play. One could imagine himself back in old Williamsburg, and the quaintness of the dialogue added to the illusion.

Three characters stood out in the play, J. Russell Urmon, who portrayed the part of John Brent. This was not his first casting in such a role and he gave it realism and life. The part of General George Washington was taken by Samuel H. Hadley of Sharon and the illusion was startling. One might have imagined that a full length portrait of Washington had stepped from a frame.

The part of Sykes the innkeeper was taken by Joseph C. Williams. Sykes is a despicable character, a sycophant and a scoundrel and to handle it as capably as did Mr. Williams requires talent. One other character, minor in part, did much to provide the needed comedy relief. This was De Luce Cole in the part of a negro butler. The author himself probably did not contemplate any prominence for this part, but Cole built it into a part that was the necessary leaven of humor to sweeten the loaf.

Parts Well Taken.

The other characters, whose names appear below handled their parts well. C. W. Herman Hess had the part of John Blair, grand master of Virginia and the first to be involved about him almost entirely. Such a part requires a good speaking voice, considerable poise and a "feel" for the dramatic. All these Mr. Hess had.

A tableau "Spirit of '76" completed the play. With the lights playing on the picture inspired the audience and the tableau got a deserved hand prior to the play and during intermissions, the New Castle Civic orchestra played under the direction of Julius V. Sypher, with drummers and fifers from the Consistory Legion of Honor under the direction of Prof. W. A. Hofmeister.

Make-up of characters was in charge of George A. Bechtel, William McGlinchey and E. J. Reinheimer. Costumes were handled by William A. Taylor, J. Fulton Rowland and Howard O. Erwin.

"John Brent" is an interesting thing. To a member of the Masonic fraternity it probably is even more interesting because of the fact that Washington and many of the other heroes of the Revolution were members of that same fraternity. The cast of "John Brent" follows:

Cast Of Characters.

James Wilkins (Secretary, Williamsburg Lodge)—Milton E. Vaughn

Most delightful in every way was the party, Friday evening given by Miss Anne Eagan on Croton avenue honoring her sister, Catherine, a bride-elect of this summer.

MOTHER'S DAY

MOTHER'S DAY will release the flood gates of tender memories for many men and women. To others who still possess that heaven-loaned saint it ought to mean more than it ever can mean until the borrowed is returned.

It seems to be part of the human scheme of things that no matter how much a mother is appreciated in life, the real appreciation comes only after she is gone. This is not the experience of one son or of one daughter but of all children. It is like health, sunshine and the other treasures of life, valued most when gone.

Mother's Day is not an old day as such events are reckoned and in some respects is not essential to the true relation between mother and child. There are any number of sons and daughters to whom a Mother's Day is not necessary to show proper respect and devotion to that parent. To them every day is Mother's Day, but there are others whose affection is no less but whose thoughts go astray that do find in this yearly observance the suggestion for doing the thing that they really meant all along to do or to say but forgot.

The wearing of a flower, the writing of a letter, the pilgrimage to a grave, the especially tender kiss, these and kindred expressions of child-love for mother are appropriate on Mother's Day. To those who have, Mother's Day should be embraced to its fullest opportunity, for there comes a time when Mother's Day makes the heart ache with longing and the sense of a terrible loss.

A QUEER PENSION BILL

The carelessness with which Congress sometimes does its work is illustrated in a recent omnibus pension bill which passed both Houses and was sent to the President. The bill contains a total of 367 items establishing special pensions and increased allowances to persons who have not been able to comply with the general laws. Naturally the bill contains many meritorious cases, but along with these were such cases as the following:

A proposed pension for a man who was court martialed for drunkenness, sentenced to six months' confinement, and whose conduct during confinement was so bad that he was discharged without honor for the good of the service.

A proposed pension for a man who was discharged without honor for chronic alcoholism.

A proposed pension to a widow whose claim was filed five years after the death of the veteran, who abandoned her claim for a period of twenty-five years, and who is shown by a recent investigation never to have been the legal wife of the soldier.

A proposed pension to a man guilty of desertion and dishonorably discharged.

A proposed pension to a man for self-inflicted injuries incurred in attempted suicide.

A proposed pension for loss of a leg as the result of being struck by the fender of a street car while the claimant was lying on the track in a completely intoxicated condition.

A proposed pension to a widow whose husband had only nine days' service in a state militia for which he was paid by the United States, no disability relating to service being found. A proposed pension to a man who spent most of his service in a hospital and was discharged without honor because of diseases contracted not in line of duty.

And numerous other cases equally without merit.

It is needless to say President Hoover vetoed the bill, recommending that it be revised to include only meritorious cases and suggesting that a larger dependence should be placed upon reports which are easily obtainable from the pension service.

The President's veto ought to be printed in every veterans' publication in the land for surely every dollar squandered upon those who have no legitimate claim upon the government is a rank injustice to those veterans whose disabilities incurred in military service properly entitle them to government recognition.

OVERLAPPING TAXES

There will be general agreement in the recommendation of Secretary Ogden L. Mills that State and Federal governments should unite in setting up a commission to study and correlate national and State tax programs, eliminating duplication which results in crushing burdens, high administrative costs and irregularities.

Composed half of delegates appointed by the President and half of delegates chosen by the Governors' Conference, such a commission would bring about reforms that would far outweigh its small cost, Secretary Mills believes.

Unquestionably there is need for a thorough study of overlapping Federal and State taxation and as Mr. Mills said:

"There is nothing inherently wrong in the use by both the Federal Government and the states of the same sources of revenue. But when it is done without agreement or understanding between the competing jurisdictions and without the restraint of a superior power, it may easily result in a combined burden heavy enough to cripple the source."

Tracing the mounting tax burden, which has increased 42 per cent between 1923 and 1930, Secretary Mills said that especially since 1910 overlapping of state and Federal taxation had become acute. At the same time constitutional and legal barriers have prevented the logical development of the state systems, bringing about a ruinous and heavy reliance upon the real property tax, he argued.

Always we come back to real estate and its burdens in any tax discussion, yet scarcely ever do we go to the root of the evil there, which lies in unscientific or deliberately dishonest manipulation of assessment values. Iron out these inequalities and many a local and state tax burden would be greatly lightened.—The Harrisburg Telegraph.

Tears Close to Shedding
Sights That Move You
A Lift for the Heart

By MARSHALL MASLIN

There are things that happen, sights to see, that bring the tears close to the brimming point. They do not fall, but they are on the edge, and a spoken word would send them over. The heart is shaken, but there's little to be said, because you know that words would not help. Such things as:

A sick man who knows he is doomed and keeps his fears and his fate to himself, because he would not add to the grief of those he loves.

A crippled child who wistfully watches his friends at play, but smiles when you speak to him.

An old miner who goes prospecting no more, dreaming of other days, and telling you of gold that he knows is still in those brown, romantic hills.

An old house, deserted and needing paint, where once a family was born and grew, shouting to live. Now left to itself and to the oaks and the flowering locust and the high weeds, but with its timbers still strong and able to bear the weight of time.

A mother bird, with a nest near, fluttering and drawing her fledgling enemies aside.

A golden eagle chained to a post. A blind man whistling his way along.

A "tough guy" being kind to a child.

A gallant youngster, in pain—and saying, "It doesn't hurt."

An old race horse in a pasture, kicking his heels in the spring of the year.

A mother, herself ill, dragging herself from sleep to tend an ailing child.

A father, with a son dead, of whom he was greatly proud, going on and pretending happiness.

An old baseball player, his best days behind him, teaching a youngster how to play the game.

Any heart that is broken, and pretends, for others' sakes or for decent pride—that it is sound.

Any drama, small or great, in which the spirit rises above its fears or its agonies or its despair and will not surrender.

Any of those sweet places and scenes that round the world and give the heart a mighty lift.

For, though our natures may be sluggish and timid in little intervals, in the stricken moments, the poet says "it can shine terribly against the dark magnificence of things."

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

What kind of a listener are you? When another is speaking do you walk up and down impatiently, waiting for an opening to "get in your say?"

Or are you the still more irritating kind that does not wait for the speaker to finish a sentence but puts the finishing touches to it himself and then continues to talk.

Much is said about the talking proclivities of women.

But women are more considerate than men in permitting another to make statements without interruption.

To be sure, the talkative man who seldom has much to say that is worth listening to, is a bore.

The gabby fellow does for some reason beyond comprehension believe that what he presents is more important than anything the other fellow says.

He is like the "life of the party" individual who monopolizes so much of the time that he soon finds himself forgotten when guest lists are made out.

He wonders why people avoid him, but it should be easy to know.

A rattle-tongued man is one of the greatest bores.

Anything but the chattering sort of fellow.

IF IN THE END
If in the end all things prove well,
What matter failures here and there,
And find the peace which follows care.

Or hours of anguish and despair,
Or the rough ground on which we fall?

If out of trial's darkening spell
We come at last to sunsets fair
And find the peace which follows care.

We'll have adventurous tales to tell
'Tis this which adds to life its zest:
The future's an unwritten book,
And into it 'tis vain to look.

One never knows what's worst or best.

Upon our cares we'll probably dwell,
If in the end all things prove well.

Dark Horse For Democrats
Placed Among Possibilities

Primary Results, Especially In New England And Pennsylvania, Interpreted As Showing That Spirited Campaign And Convention Are Likely

Recent primary results in the Democratic party, especially in New England and Pennsylvania, arouse new speculation as the nomination, chief among which is the thought that a dark horse may be chosen as the party standard bearer. Much attention is given to Massachusetts, with its big majority for Smith, while his large minority vote in Pennsylvania is considered impressive.

"There will be a convention instead of a ratifying ceremony, when the Democratic hosts meet at Chicago," says the AKRON BEACON JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.), while the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.) remarks: "As to whether Smith or Roosevelt would stand the better chance of winning against Hoover, in the event that no compromise man can be found, that is a problem for the wisecracks." The WASHINGTON EVENING STAR (Ind.) feels that "in the event of a protracted deadlock, as in 1924 at Madison Square Garden, a dark horse is most likely to win the nomination."

"Those who, while not opposed to Governor Roosevelt, still are not convinced that he is the best man available," according to the MORRISTOWN DOMINION-NEWS (Ind.), "will be glad that the situation has been so altered. The situation now so shapes up to give the Roosevelt opposition new spirit."

"The issue," in the opinion of the ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION (Ind.), "is not so much directly between Smith and Roosevelt, as whether the leaders who do not want the New York governor nominated can prevent the Roosevelt bandwagon getting under way. Roosevelt's primaries were not decisive as to this, but it can certainly be said that Smith struck a spoke in the wheels."

"Whatever happens at Chicago, Smith will never be nominated," proclaims the LYNCHBURG NEWS (Dem.), while the MILWAUKEE JOURNAL (Ind.) states: "The question really is: Shall the Democrats bow to a minority representing whoever and whatever interests Mr. Smith and Mr. Raskob represent in this year of 1932? If they do, a disgusted public is likely to say, 'Hoover is a washout, but what is offered that is better?'"

The situation is interpreted by the BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD (Dem.) with the statement: "Coming on the heels of the bad impression made by his 'little man' appeal, Roosevelt's utter failure in Massachusetts and his inability to make a decided showing in Pennsylvania must be interpreted as depriving him of a certain glamor which his earlier success gave him. He is still very much in the running, but he no longer seems to be the man of destiny. The outlook now is that while he will not go into the convention trailing clouds of glory, and that should signify that among other things, Young, Traylor, Baker, and the Democratic leader for 1932."

"When it is reflected that Smith has been defeated in New Hampshire, in Minnesota, in Maine, in Wisconsin and in the single contested district in New York, all of which were swept by Roosevelt, says the ATLANTA JOURNAL (Dem.), "his success in the Bay state sinks into relative insignificance." That paper concludes: "Governor Roosevelt maintains his leadership in Democracy's national field and continues the only candidate for the party's presidential nomination who has more than a local or factional following. Long ago Smith was eliminated as a serious contender. None of the intrigues to 'stop' Roosevelt has found support in the party's ranks. Evidently he is the man of the hour and the Democrat for America."

"The honor of the day must be conceded to Mr. Smith, though his own prospect for getting the coveted nomination is not materially better," thinks the ROANOKE TIMES (Dem.), while the HARTFORD TIMES (Ind. Dem.) feels that "the Smith group seems hardly likely to be a large one, since the other voters of the Roosevelt nomination or to dictate the nomination of someone else." The ASBURY PARK PRESS (Ind. Dem.) believes that the Bay state result "does not offer sufficient grounds for the forecast that Governor Roosevelt will not win the Democratic nomination."

The OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES (Ind.) holds that "the likelihood of Smith's nomination remains about as remote as ever."

Reviewing the conditions in various states, particularly the existence of favorite sons, with the votes that they have gathered, the OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES (Ind.) says: "In the great central states, in the west, in the border states and in the south, party leaders want a candidate who is widely popular, who can win, and who can help them carry their own states. Roosevelt, who satisfies the progressive aspirations of the day, fits in with that description. He will come to the convention with a clear majority if not on the first ballot then on early succeeding ballots. The logic of the situation clearly indicates his nomination."

Prospects of the selection of a compromise candidate are emphasized by the ROCK ISLAND ARGUS (Ind.), the MILWAUKEE SENTINEL (Ind.), the HAVERTHILL GAZETTE (Ind. Rep.), and the ST. LOUIS TIMES (Rep.), while the SCRANTON TIMES (Dem.) is convinced that "no candidate will have a controlling vote in advance of the convention proper." The NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE (Dem.) suggests: "Whether a deadlock and a long convention fight would advantage the party and better its chance of victory in November is a question to which millions of Democrats doubtless are giving present and anxious thought."

"The result changes the character of the Democratic campaign," states the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE (Ind. Rep.), while the OAKLAND TRIBUNE (Rep.) says that it "strengthens the belief that the Democratic convention in Chicago is going to afford the delegates and the nation many interesting moments."

"It is inconceivable," according to the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM (Ind. Dem.), "that any candidate can win in the early balloting in the convention if he is confronted by a serious contest. Such a contest

SPECIAL PROGRAMS IN CHURCHES MOTHER'S DAY

Mother Will Be Honored Sunday

Many Sermons And Special Musical Numbers To Add To Tribute

VARIED PROGRAMS ARE ARRANGED

"MOTHER" a word which stirs the love in the heart of every human, will be the basis for sermon and song in the various churches of New Castle Sunday, at all services, with programs especially prepared for this day.

Beautiful thoughts have been transposed into songs, which will be sung by the church choirs tomorrow and sermons have been inspired by the love of a mother and her tender devotion, and these will be heard by the various congregations as each turns his thought to that dearest of all persons, "Mother," whether living or passed on to her reward.

Honors will be paid to the oldest mothers, the youngest mothers and the mothers with the largest families in the church services.

Eighteen years ago, on May 10, 1914 the first general observance of the day, as a national celebration, was held. The second Sunday in May was set aside for this observance, by a proclamation issued by President Woodrow Wilson, as the outcome of a thought of Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who had called upon the members of the House of Representatives in Washington, asking that a day in the year be observed as a "Mother's Day" and the idea met with such approval, that today the observance has spread to all parts of Europe, Japan, Africa, Palestine and other countries.

In addition to being the founder of "Mother's Day" as a national day, Miss Jarvis was also instrumental in effecting a Mother's Day International Association, for the purpose of observing the day in all countries of the earth.

This exchange is but another evidence of the cordial relations between the churches of New Castle.

MOTHER'S DAY TRIBUTE IN VERSE

I have praised many loved ones in my song,
Any yet I stand

Their daily bread.

HIGHLIGHTS OF HISTORY

By J. Carroll Mansfield

George Washington
No. 72. The March to Yorktown

With the assurance that DeGrasse with a powerful French fleet from the west Indies would arrive at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay late in August, 1781, Washington secretly planned to move his army from the Hudson to Virginia to trap Cornwallis' British army at Yorktown.

WASHINGTON SENT A DISPATCH BEARING SOUTH TO VIRGINIA WITH ORDERS TO LAFAYETTE TO BLOCK CORNWALLIS SHOULD THE LATTER LEAVE YORKTOWN AND ATTEMPT TO RETREAT INTO THE CAROLINAS. THEN, LEAVING A SMALL FORCE UNDER GENERAL HEATH TO HOLD THE HUDSON, WASHINGTON PREPARED FOR THE DASH TO YORKTOWN.

ON AUGUST 21 WASHINGTON AND ROCHAMBEAU AFTER MAKING A FEINT AGAINST NEW YORK TO MISLEAD CLINTON AS TO THEIR REAL INTENTION, SET OUT ON THE LONG MARCH TO VIRGINIA. TWO WEEKS PASSED BEFORE CLINTON LEARNED THAT THE ALLIED ARMY WAS MOVING SOUTHWARD. BY THAT TIME IT HAD PASSED PHILADELPHIA.

SEPTEMBER 14TH WASHINGTON JOINED LAFAYETTE IN VIRGINIA. BY THE 26TH THE ENTIRE FRANCO-AMERICAN FORCE WAS ASSEMBLED AT WILLIAMSBURG AND THE ADVANCE TO YORKTOWN WAS BEGUN. CORNWALLIS WAS UNAWARE OF HIS DANGER UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE.

KENTUCKY DERBY WILL BE RUN TODAY

Tick On Favored To Win Rich Prize

Louisville Refuses To Become Excited About Annual Classic Today

Small Field To Go To Barrier. Race Starts At Seven O'clock Daylight Time

By FRANK G. MENKE
International News Service Staff Editor.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—A few horses with a smattering of class and the others merely selling platers will run this afternoon in the 58th Kentucky Derby, richest prize in horse racing, which is the American turf can't wait. Perhaps one or the other will come on to do surprising things in a remarkable way, but so much is not in prospect. There is not a runner in the field who owns a world's or a track record, none that has not been beaten to a point equivalent to disgrace.

Tick On remains the 9 to 5 favorite probably because his trainer, Maxie Hirsch, is a better educationist, or perhaps because the Pimlico second to Top Flight in the Pimlico Futurity last year, the same Tick On who was whipped in his only outing this season and the same Top Flight that met the identical fate.

Tips Are Numerous.
There are more tips in this race, more "sure things" talk by owners and trainers of horses seemingly without a chance, than have been waited over a derby scene for almost a generation. Nothing showed surprise and no matter which horse charges on to triumph there will be thousands shrilling "I told you so."

Trains, autos, boats, buses and teams came chugging into town all through the night and into the morning carrying their human freight that is consigned to Churchill Downs for an afternoon's holiday at Col. Matt Winn's track. But the unloading process left much to the desire of those who promote the annual classic and all indications were that the attendance might mark a new modern low for the event.

Louisville Not Excited.
Louisville itself refused to become noticeably excited about it. Those Kentuckians love horses, they know them and demand that the derby be a race embracing the greatest three-year-olds in the land, unfortunately the best of the crop seem to be in their stalls this year suffering from illness or injury.

You could not gather two minor league nines, label the clash "the world series" and get the public to believe it and by the same token you can't tease a Kentuckian into acknowledging that this derby is what the derby is supposed to represent.

At least not with any great financial success, that with the general admission fixed at $3.30 and the club house fixed at $10 per human not in times like these.

To Much Expense.
Louisville usually has greeted the visiting army with bunting banners and high glee. The foreigners here for a day or two have romped merrily in somewhat higher elie. But the glee is not visible and the flags and the glad streamers snapping in the breezes are something you must hunt to find.

The whole attitude about the carnival display seems to be that decorations cost money and if there aren't enough spending customers to make a reasonable profit, why go to the expense of buying and hoisting gala effects?

East Brook High Tops Wilmington

Mahoning Yankees Defeats Wabash

Mahoning Yankees defeated the Wabash A. C. 2 to 0 on the E. & A. field yesterday. The Yankees outfielded the Wabash team. Lutton and Withdrow had two-base hits. Withdrow pitched for the Yanks and had five strikeouts. His opponent, Pecarro, fanned four.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Three home runs were turned in yesterday. Myatt of the Indians, F. Schultz of the Browns and O'Doul of the Dodgers getting the four-ply swats. At present Terry of the Giants heads the home run hitters with seven marathon clouts.

Many coaches and players attended the demonstration game and heard the new football rules explained yesterday at Duquesne University. Coach Elmer Layden sent two teams through the demonstration. Coach Phil Bridenbaugh was among those who attended the meeting.

High Track Men At Pittsburgh

Early this morning a squad of New Castle High track and field men under the supervision of Head Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh, Assistant Coaches Klee and Thomas, and Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner motored to Pittsburgh, where the locals will compete in the annual Interscholastic meet to be held at the Pitt Stadium.

New Castle is banking on Andy Lasky to carry home the bacon. Last year it was the individual work of this lanky basketball center that gave the red and black team a tie with Salem, Ohio. Kariki, Teplica, Patsy Jones, and Scarazzo will carry the running burden today, while Lane will likely be entered in the broad jump.

Thursday evening in the spacious auditorium of the Union High School, the Junior Class of 1932 tendered to the Senior Class of 1932 the annual Junior and Senior banquet of the school.

The guest list of the evening was approximately 125, the affair being one of the most successful of its kind ever held in the school.

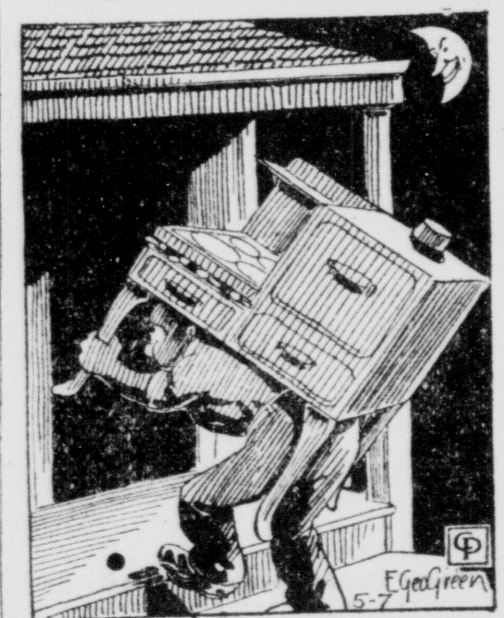

At 6:30 o'clock, the students and members of the faculty sat down to a fine dinner served by the Parents-Teachers Association mothers. After the blessing was given by Prof. R. F. Conway, Miss Shirley Kerr, who acted as toastmistress, introduced the speakers of the evening and extended the guests a most hearty welcome.

The first speaker was Richard Cochran, representing the Junior Class. He gave a splendid toast to the Seniors. Clyde Davidson responded on behalf of the seniors. Miss Lenore Coates then gave a toast to the faculty in the form of a poem and Mr. Wilbert Leonard, principal of the school, made the response for the faculty.

Blue streamer added to the attractiveness of the auditorium and the banquet table was prettily decorated with long burning tapers adding to the attractiveness of the scene.

After the dinner, the guests were entertained by the strains of an orchestra. Round and square dancing prevailed throughout the evening. Five Hundred was also in vogue for those who enjoyed it.

The success of the occasion was due to the efforts of Miss Alma Robison and Robert Duff, members of the faculty.

Rubbish Heap Turned Into Pretty Garden Spot

Sunny hills of Italy, with its vineyards and garden patches perched along the steep slants of that mountainous country, have been transported to New Castle by a group of Italian-Americans residing in the vicinity of Taylor and Division streets.

In that plot of ground, owned for the most part by Mrs. Lucinda Taylor, and comprising part of the old Taylor estate, situated above Pearson street, between Division and Taylor streets, a group of Italian residents have transformed a rubbish-strewn hillside into a garden spot of beauty in the last two years.

The have grubbed away the brush and cut down the small trees which formerly covered the hillside, a gathering spot for tin cans and rubbish of all kinds, and have turned it into gardens.

These garden plots, irregular in shape and bounded by fences of stone, partly to identify the boundary lines of the plots and partly to prevent the earth from being washed away, are now being spaded up for gardens this summer, and present a beautiful appearance. In a few more weeks, rows of green shoots will be sticking up through the ground, further enhancing the attractiveness of the picture.

For those who are interested in beautifying projects, it will pay them to visit the spot. Each plot is bounded by a wall of stone, making the contrast to the old rubbish-strewn hillside more vivid.

In addition to benefiting themselves, those responsible have completed a real civic project which will vie with the work done at Gaston Park, along the Neshannock Creek, and across from the hospital, by the unemployed workers aided by the Mayor's Relief.

A different spirit has prompted them, however. They have been building gardens to help themselves. Their work has been done of their own initiative and they have wrought better than they expected.

Seventh—Troop 7 of the Shelby club, Ellwood City, with 93.50 percent.

Keen Race Watched

Indicative of the close scoring made in the public exhibition is the score of the winners and the Elks troop, which rated second position by a fraction less than the visitors.
Tieing for the third position, Troop 15's boys and the Kiwanis Troop 37 team were forced to work an additional problem, the judges giving the team doing the best work a plus and the other a minus. Troop 15's work was adjudged the best.
The meet in the high school gymnasium was witnessed by a number of Scouting's leaders and parents of the boys.

Each team was given four complicated problems of first aid such as might be encountered at any time, and the rescuers worked against time. For each group there was a special judge.

The teams included a scout captain, patient, and four workers—the patient also having to take the place of a team member during one of the problems.

Draw Special Credit

Contributing to the success of the meet were C. W. Bolen, Clarence Miller and N. W. Wasser, the county committee, working in cooperation with the Western Pennsylvania Safety conference. The Senior High gym was donated; R. L. Boyd furnished chairs, and the Bell Telephone company furnished transportation.

Judges who presided over the events were George Means, R. F. Dixon and H. R. Applegate, of Sharon, Bell men; R. J. Davis, Milo Gray, N. I. Slezak, R. A. Lewis, F. J. Howe and N. A. Bothwell, of Beaver Falls, part of the Duquesne Light and Power and part Bell men; R. A. Henry, Rochester, Bell man, and C. E. Noonan, of the Mine Safety Appliance company, of Pittsburgh, the chief judge. R. F. Dixon was named timer and R. A. Henry as recorder.
Scout officials described the meet as "probably the keenest ever conducted by the Lawrence council."

Part of the winners will represent the council at the Western Pennsylvania outdoor meet in Pittsburgh on June 11.

Miss Barber Heads Library Society

Member Of Local Library Staff
Honored At Meeting In Ambridge Friday

Miss Rose Barber, a member of the free public library staff, was named president of the four-county library association, composed of Beaver, Butler, Lawrence and Allegheny counties, at the meeting held in Ambridge Friday. Miss Irene McConnell of Butler was named secretary.

Miss Alice Sterling, librarian of the local library, gave a paper on "The Challenge of 1932," which was well received. Miss Sterling gave a clear insight into present conditions, how they affect the library and how the library has proven an influence for good.

Miss Mildred Allman, librarian of Westminster College, gave a review and discussed recent books.

One of the features of the program was a visit to the great house of the Economites at Ambridge, which proved most interesting.

The next meeting of the association will be held in the fall in the Geneva College library. The date will be selected later.

Those from the local library who attended yesterday's meeting were: Miss Sterling, Miss Barber, Mrs. Raymond Johnston and Miss Alice Joyce.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

KILL LICE AND MITES FOR CHICKEN COMFORT

Some chickens are dual purpose birds but they cannot feed lice and mites and lay eggs profitably at the same time.

Body lice are persistent parasites that live on the birds all the time unless efforts are made to control them. They may be found by parting the bird's feathers below the vent or under the wings.

Sodium fluoride worked into the feathers and on the body is used by a number of poultrymen to treat their flocks for lice. A mixture of two parts of blue ointment and one part of vasoline also is used. A piece of this material about the size of a small pea is rubbed on the skin below the vent.

During the past few years many of the larger poultrymen have used nicotine sulphate to rid their flocks of lice. The fumes kill the lice.

The material is applied in a strip one-half inch wide on the perches about a half hour before the birds go to roost. This treatment should be used only in mild weather. Too heavy an application may upset the flock and decrease egg production.

Red mites are sucking insects that work on the birds while on the roost or in the nests. During the day the mites usually hide in cracks and crevices of the roosts and perch supports. The use of old engine oil from the truck tractor or automobile for killing the red mites is recommended. There also are commercial products which are very satisfactory.

The entire perch should be treated, but very thorough treatment should be given the perches, their supports, and the points where the perches rest on the supports.

USE WHEAT AND RYE FOR EARLY PASTURE

With low prices of grain in effect, the farmer may obtain more profit by pasturing part of the crop this spring.

An acre of wheat or rye will carry two or three cows for three or four weeks or until the grass in the pasture is large enough to make good grazing. The cows should be turned out when the grain is eight to ten inches high. A cow on this kind of grazing will soon eat her fill, and the abundant succulent feed will stimulate production. Because of the possibility of a grassy taint in the milk, especially from wheat, the cows should be taken off several hours before milking.

If not pastured when the ground is wet and soft, the clover seeding usually is not injured and it may be improved by the early removal of the grain. Any grain left after the grazing becomes too old and tough to be relished may be mowed.

If late summer pasture is needed the area of grain grazed off may be disked or plowed and seeded to sudan grass at the rate of 25 or 30 pounds an acre. This will be ready to pasture from the middle of July until frost.

PLANT STRONG SEEDLINGS

Strong plants transplanted in well-prepared soil, will produce early vegetables to eat or sell and more of them in the same space.

Golden Acre cabbage grown from good early plants will mature the last of June, a period of 75 days. Later plantings in June will furnish a supply for fall and winter.

Tomatoes must be transplanted just as soon as danger of frost is past, if a satisfactory yield is to be harvested. Unless the tomatoes are staked, 4 by 4 feet is sufficient spacing.

Earlier lettuce, beets, onions, kohlrabi, cauliflower, broccoli, celery and other vegetables may be grown where good strong plants are used.

Sometimes cucumber, muskmelon, squash and sweet corn seedlings are started in pots or berry baskets. The entire root system is left undisturbed when these plants are set in the open ground.

A few precautions will lessen losses from plants transplanted from the coldframes to the garden. Only plants which are healthy, stocky and properly hardened should be used. The plants should be watered well before they are disturbed. Protection from direct sunlight or drying winds will prevent drying out of the roots and wilting of the tops.

Cloudy days and late afternoons are the best times to transplant. If the soil is dry, water should be added to the partially filled hole when setting the plant.

CLEAN SURROUNDINGS KEEP FLIES DOWN

Flies annoy man and beast. They are dangerous to human health because they carry disease germs to foods exposed in unprotected places. Their activities on cattle and around barns often result in reduced milk production or contamination of the milk.

The presence of flies usually is due to improper disposal of substances in which they breed. If such conditions are prevented thru the use of simple precaution, farmable and losses due to the contamination of foods avoided.

APPLES NEED HELP IN SETTING FRUIT

Old orchards containing a few trees each of numerous varieties seldom were troubled with pollination problems. When growers planted large blocks of single varieties, however, unsatisfactory production often resulted even when the trees were carefully tended. Pollen from different varieties was needed to get a good set of fruit.

All the varieties seem to be consistently better producers when cross-pollinated, but certain varieties are not good pollenizers for certain other varieties. For instance, Black Twig, Stayman and Winesap are almost worthless in this respect for any other variety.

Pollination difficulties are solved best at planting time. Where this has not been done though, and the grower has a large block of trees of the same variety, it becomes necessary to graft part of the trees of the same variety which will act as pollenizer. During the several seasons required for the grafts to start to bloom, the problem may be solved by flowering bouquets of proper varieties in the trees just as the flowers open.

The one grower in Berks county who has a 19-year-old block of 40 acres, entirely Delicious, placed bouquets in every second tree in every other row. Two buckets were nailed on opposite sides of the tree well up toward the top, these filled with water, and in each placed a bouquet consisting of several branches of blossoms 2 to 4 feet long. The bouquets were tied in place. The water was replenished from time to time as necessary to prevent the flowers from wilting.

In 1931 the yield from this orchard was 13,000 bushels, whereas it had never exceeded 1,800 bushels in previous years when no bouquets had been used.

Though much remains to be learned about pollination, the following suggestions are well founded: use blossoms of Ben Davis, Gano, Fameuse, Dutchess, Transparent, York, Jonathan, Wealthy and Cortland. For Stayman, use blossoms of Grimes, Red Delicious, Rome, York, McIntosh and Transparent. For Paragon, use Delicious, Jonathan, Gano and Grimes. Baldwin will set fruit with pollen of Grimes, Wealthy, McIntosh, Dutchess, Jonathan, Delicious and Transparent. For Northern Spy, use Rome, Delicious, Tolman Sweet, Wealthy and Northwestern Greening pollen. McIntosh sets well with pollen of Delicious, York, Maiden Blush, Dutchess, Transparent, Twenty Ounce and Cortland.

The importance of bees must not be overlooked. About one good colony per acre of orchard should be ample to insure that the pollen actually gets carried to the blossoms.

Penn-Mead Case Opinion Rendered

In the case of Anna C. Duff, Mary E. Browne, Mary S. Gilliland and J. Clyde Gilliland against the Pennsylvania Engineering Works, Judge James S. Chambers handed down an opinion this morning, in which preliminary objections by defendants to bill in equity are dismissed. Defendants are required to file an answer within 30 days.

Correct This Sentence: "I hate the male sex," said the ardent feminist, "and it isn't because men ignore me."

If there is no other way to suppress the racketeer, they might get him for impersonating an officer.

Legal action is thought to be a possibility by some of the constables of the county to collect costs due them from the county. The constables claim that they have submitted their cost bills in compliance with the law and that these are being held up by the County Controller R. C. McCaslin, Jr., who in turn is guided by the advice of his counsel, Attorney Orville Brown. In the past six months Mr. Brown has made a number of revisions in cost bills presented by constables. Some items have been eliminated altogether, others have been pared down and still others are being scrutinized at the present time.

The constables argue that their costs are submitted on the basis of what the law provides. They further insist that they are entitled to a reasonably quick return of them from the county and because they are not getting it, are threatening to go into court and ask for collection.

NEW YORK STOCKS

International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 7.—The stock market continued forward again after early irregularity today.

An advance in the rails, led by Atchafon and Union Pacific, stemmed the decline at the end of the first half hour and new high for the move were established in the second hour.

Oils were strong. Standard Oil of New Jersey outstripping the group with a good-sized advance on heavy dealings. Utilities were firm, aided by strength in Consolidated Gas, American Telephone and Western Union were in demand at higher prices.

Further short covering came into the steel stocks following yesterday's wage reduction by Big Steel but gains were small. Motors did little. Specialties like Allied Chemical, Auburn and Eastman Kodak were lifted by further short covering.

Bonds showed an improved tone. Wheat was steady while Cotton worked higher.

Seniors Give Class Play To Packed House

"Jonesy" Scores Hit with Large Audience In Lincoln Auditorium Last Night

Cast Of 13 Gives Notable Interpretation Of Clever Three-Act Comedy

ELLWOOD CITY, May 7.—If there is any business depression in this country it was not evident in Ellwood City last night according to the record crowd that witnessed the production of "Jonesy," the Senior Class Play in the Lincoln auditorium. It was considered an evening well spent.

The spacious auditorium was well packed, having almost every seat occupied. Each member of the cast went into his role with earnestness and zeal, as if the part was especially made for him or her. This only reflects upon the excellent selection and coaching by Miss Kathleen Johns and John Preston.

The play was based around two youths home from college who lost no time in their efforts to paint the town red and not only placing themselves in a very delicate position, but they involved one whole family. Don Stevenson as Billie Morgan, the son of a very rich man was the house guest of Wilbur "Jonesy" Jones, played by William Eaker. The former endeavored to acquaint Jonesy with the more desirable people of the community, who in no time had alluded themselves to the family car as a result of a poker game. From then on the idea was to keep the Jones family ignorant as to the fate of the car until enough money was sent by Morgan's father to buy the car back.

In the meantime both of the boys had alluded themselves to the family car as a result of a poker game. From then on the idea was to keep the Jones family ignorant as to the fate of the car until enough money was sent by Morgan's father to buy the car back.

Upon finding out that Diana Devereaux portrayed by Miss Margaret Stamm was the niece of Stanley Jackson (George Brown) a man about town, Mr. and Mrs. Jones concentrated their attentions to wiping out the insult tendered to Diana, Jones's actress friend. It so happened that Mr. Jones was after a position to be given by Stanley Jackson, henceforth the anxiety to make amends with Diana. This matter was finally settled but the absence of the family car got Henry Jones into jail. Being informed by his son, Jones that the car was being repaired at the garage, he was much up in the air upon finding someone else driving it. Mrs. Jones had found out the true cause for the absence of the car and to shield her son, also lied to her husband as to its whereabouts. It was a very humorous situation as Jonesy, Billy Morgan, and Mrs. Jones over everything in their power to deceive Henry Jones about the car.

Finally matters came to a head when Mr. Jones endeavored to wrest his car from the hands of Mr. Silverberg, played by Richard Wilson, who was holding the car until Jonesy produced $300 loaned to him. A street brawl resulted and Mr. Jones was taken to jail. Jonesy confessed all to the family and upon confessing it to the police, his father was released. Jonesy got a job in the street department so as to earn enough money to buy the car back. Everything was finally settled and Diana Devereaux promised to marry Jonesy. This union placed Henry Jones in good stand for the position offered by Stanley Jackson again.

Mildred Ellis (Jane Weigle) Jonesy's former sweetheart, found an attraction in Billie Morgan, when she learned that he was worth three million dollars.

Final music was given by the High School orchestra between acts under the direction of Prof. Paul Winter.

Also at the end of the second act the class presented their coaches with beautiful gifts.

The play featured the excellent acting of Grace Davis, who has real talent for this kind of work and William Eaker who played the role of the indignant son to perfection. Rose Partridge as Anne Jones was in the thick of the plot trying to keep peace in the family. She was the only one that wasn't worried about her brother's actions. Minor roles were played by Robert Streeter, David Falen, and Robert Burns.

Eighteen-Day Diet —First Three Days

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Since publishing a few weeks ago, a portion of the Hollywood diet, there have been so many requests for the full list that it will be reprinted in full this week. It, however, takes up too much space for one day's column, so that it will be distributed and discussed through the week—three days' diet in each article.

It was called the Eighteen Day Diet, and, according to its originator, is calculated to reduce a pound a day. This is quite in accord with the best modern theory of weight reduction. It is a common experience that when a person goes on a diet no loss of body weight occurs during the first few days. This has been found to be due to water retention.

In the course of about a week this water retention disappears and the effects of the dieting begin to appear. So that on any diet for reducing purposes, weight will not be expected to fall until the second week. The eighteen day stretch, therefore, is about the right length for effective results.

HOLLYWOOD EIGHTEEN DAY DIET

Luncheon—One egg; toast; one-half head lettuce, few calories dressing; coffee; one-half grapefruit.

Dinner—Lark T-bone steak, broiled; one-half head lettuce, dressing; whole tomato; one-half grapefruit, coffee.

Third Day

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
I. E. — Is the injection treatment for varicose veins effective even when the veins have not caused an ulcer on the skin?
Answer: In recommending the injection treatment for varicose veins the presence of ulcers has possibly been stressed so much as to cause a misunderstanding. The injection treatment for varicose veins is valuable whether skin ulcers are present or not.

Talbot Check Adds $20,467 To Funds

County's Third Payment Comes In Mail Today; Three More Expected

A sum of $20,467 was transferred today from the state treasury to the Lawrence county coffers as the third Talbot Relief Bill check arrived in the mail from Harrisburg. County Treasurer W. O. Pitts received it.

The Lawrence county check was a part of the $1,932,778 sent out from the capital this week to 66 counties of the state. The Locomotive county payment was temporarily withheld.

Today's check, under the law, was to have been paid in February. Litigation delayed the disbursement. The March payment is expected to be made soon.

The April and May checks, the last of the $10,000,000 appropriation of the legislature, will be prepared on the basis of a new unemployment report now in formation.

U. S. Steel Cuts Pay 15 Per Cent

Effective On May 15; Bethlehem Plans Similar Action

NEW YORK, May 7.—Employees of the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries will receive a 15 per cent cut in their wages and salaries, effective May 15.

Announcement of the reduction, the second to be made by the company during the depression, came late Friday in a brief statement. The news occasioned no surprise in business or financial circles, although some quarters had felt that the cut, long believed inevitable, would amount to 10 per cent which was the size of its October 1 predecessor.

E. G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in a one-sentence statement said "Bethlehem will make adjustments in wage and salary rates similar to that announced by the United States Steel Corporation."

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

For a little while last night a lot of folks went back to the Revolutionary days, when men wore knee breeches, and men's hose cost more than three for a quarter. Up in the Cathedral the Consistory Players presented a play based on incidents of the Revolution and for two hours or more spectators lived in another world.

Those must have been the days. Getting ready for a social engagement must have meant spending most of the afternoon getting the wig put on properly and seeing that the buckles at the knees were on straight.

It was an interesting bit of historic narrative, the play and in his Bicentennial year, most appropriate.

In the high school gymnasium, the Boy Scouts were going through some modern antics, demonstrating First Aid measures before a group of experts. The Scout movement contains a thousand good things, but this First Aid idea stands among the best. Teaching a boy how to apply emergency measures on himself or his chum means saving life.

Out along East Washington street the surveyors are still looking through those telescope effects and calling signals. The idea seems to be that they are going to widen the street a bit, and if proper care to get the exact line means anything, this job should be done almost engineeringly perfect.

It hasn't been so many years, or so it seems, that widening the street was not a problem, fact is paving wasn't either. The paving came only as far as Franklin Avenue and so did the street car line. From Franklin Avenue on out, it was dirt road with nothing faster than a runaway horse to create excitement.

Those were the days when the Irish and the Marshall estates made elegant picnic grounds, and east of Arlington avenue was almost undiscovered territory. Those days the street was known as Pittsburgh Street.

Butler Pastor To Speak Monday

Rev. George Miller, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Butler, will be the guest preacher at the union prayer services Monday evening in the First Christian church.

These weekly prayer services are attracting widespread interest and each evening they are held the congregation increases. The service will begin at 7:45 p. m. and the prayer group leaders are asked to assemble at 7:30.
